There's No Such Thing as a Free Lunch

By Dana Dillon, Teachers' Retirement Board Chair

Whenever I talk with teachers in California about saving for retirement, I'm always pleased to hear that many of you have chosen early in your careers to supplement your CalSTRS defined benefit pension with retirement savings through a 403(b) or 457(b) plan. The pretax savings of participating in such plans can significantly add toward your retirement goal.

Unfortunately, I also hear too often regrets from enough of you who, although you made the right decision to invest early, made the wrong investment decisions—either ending up in an inappropriate investment or with a product with excessively high fees.

Is it a Free Meal?

We all get flyers in the mail encouraging us to attend a “free” dinner or lunch that will involve a financial presentation. What we save on a meal can be quickly lost if we don't make prudent decisions on our investments. Making a decision that could ultimately impact your retirement by thousands of dollars should be done with a financial professional you trust and know is working in your best interests.

Fiduciary Responsibility

Much like the Teachers' Retirement Board has a fiduciary responsibility to ensure your CalSTRS retirement fund is secure, a financial advisor who serves in a fiduciary role must put your interests ahead of his or her own. Accordingly, if you're working with a broker or insurance agent who is not a fiduciary, he or she is not legally required to act in your best interests—and that agent may be getting big commissions for your investments that may not be fully disclosed to you.

Bottom line: Supplemental savings for retirement is an important element of a plan to meet your long-term retirement needs, but take the time to do it right. One tool that can help is 403bCompare.com, a website that provides objective, side-by-side comparisons of registered 403(b) plans.

Rollover to CalSTRS Pension2®

Your CalSTRS retirement benefit will replace, on average, about 55 percent of your current salary. You'll need to close any gap between your income and your pension with savings and investments. CalSTRS Pension2 offers 403(b), 457(b) and Roth 403(b) plans for additional retirement savings. Pension2 plans feature low fees and expenses, so you keep more of your money for retirement.

Already Saving?

Already have money invested in a 403(b) or 457(b) account administered by another company and don't like the high fees and expenses you're paying? Check out Pension2's low-cost options. Even a 1 percent difference can make a big impact to your bottom line over time. Consider rolling over your accounts to Pension2, but be aware of potential costs from your current plan if you do.

Let Us Compare

Not sure what you're paying in fees? Let CalSTRS Pension2 take a look. Send us your latest quarterly statement and let us compare the plans and see how much a rollover to Pension2 can save you.

Email your statement to Pension2@CalSTRS.com, or fax it to 916-414-1012 after downloading a cover sheet from Pension2.com (select Rollover to CalSTRS Pension2). Be sure to block out your Social Security number and any other personal information.

Rollovers at Retirement

Keep in mind that you can also roll over your CalSTRS Defined Benefit Supplement or Cash Balance accounts, or outside 403(b) or 457(b) accounts, to Pension2 when you retire.

CalPERS Long-Term Care Program Open to New Applicants

The CalPERS Long-Term Care Program is now open to new applicants. The program offers flexible coverage options to help you preserve assets while maintaining quality of life, including:

- Plan options that allow you to tailor coverage to suit needs and budget.
- Benefits that make it easier to receive care at home.
- Options designed to keep up with the rising costs of receiving long-term care.

You and your spouse, parents, parents-in-law, adult children and adult siblings, between the ages of 18 and 79, are eligible to apply.

For more information, visit CalPERSLongTermCare.com or call 800-908-9119.

Your CalSTRS Pension May Be Community Property

Whether you're in the early stages of your career or already retired, your spouse may have a legal interest in your CalSTRS benefits. This interest begins the day you are married and ends at the date of separation. If you're involved in a divorce or a legal separation, here are some things you should keep in mind.

Postponing the Issue Could Delay Retirement Payments

Don't put off addressing this important issue until you're ready to retire. A special court order may be needed, which could delay your retirement payments indefinitely.

Death Benefits May Be Affected

Don't leave your loved ones the legacy of an unresolved divorce case. If there's an outstanding community property interest in your benefits at the time of your death, payment to your beneficiaries may be delayed until the issue is addressed in the courts.

Community Property Staff Is Available

CalSTRS Community Property staff is available to assist you by answering general questions, providing retirement estimates, reviewing draft orders for compliance with the California Education Code and setting up court-ordered payments to nonmember spouses. Our staff is not permitted to provide legal advice, or to draft or file court orders.

For more information, see the Community Property Guide, available at CalSTRS.com/publications, or call the Community Property Office at 916-414-1725.

Creditable Compensation Regulations Update

At CalSTRS nearly everything we do is dictated by the Teachers' Retirement Law, which is part of the Education Code. When the law is ambiguous, regulations provide a forum for agencies to clarify the law while providing the public with an opportunity to participate in the process.

The Regulatory Process

To initiate the regulatory process, the California Office of Administrative Law publishes a notice in the California Regulatory Notice Register. CalSTRS mails a copy of the proposal regulations to those who request it and posts the notice and related documents on CalSTRS.com/regulations. During the time leading up to publication of the notice, we engage with, and solicit input from, stakeholder groups and employers.

The public then has 45 days to submit comments in writing on the proposed regulation. The Teachers' Retirement Board may elect to hold a hearing at the end of the 45 days, or anyone can request that a hearing be held if one is not initially offered. Changes to the regulations may result from feedback received during this time, and if those changes go beyond minor cosmetic or grammatical adjustments, an additional comment period is required.

Creditable Compensation Regulations

Since last fall, we have engaged with stakeholders to produce a package of regulations clarifying creditable compensation. Those regulations were noticed on December 20, 2013, and the first comment period ended this February. A second comment period is expected this spring.

Visit CalSTRS.com/regulations for updates and information on the creditable compensation regulations and any future proposed regulations.

A Conversation With Timothy Smith—2014 California Teacher of the Year

Timothy Smith was named 2014 California Teacher of the Year by the California Department of Education. Mr. Smith was one of five California teachers recognized and was also chosen as California's representative for the National Teacher of the Year competition.

Mr. Smith teaches 9th through 12th grade Algebra I and Advanced Placement Statistics at Florin High School in the Elk Grove Unified School District. He has been a CalSTRS member for 13 years.

We asked Mr. Smith about his teaching career.

What made you want to become a teacher?

I have always wanted to be a teacher. I had the opportunity to substitute for my fourth grade teacher, Ms. Balloon, in 1981, and I loved it. After holding various jobs, my wife asked me one day in 1996 if I would like to quit work and go back to college to become a teacher. I quit my job two weeks later, and it has been all about teaching ever since.

What most inspires you to teach each day?

When my students walk into my room each day, the future walks in with them. They are so resilient and inspiring that very few things can bring me down. Some of my students come from very low-income households, and they know that education will not only lift themselves, but their whole family, out of poverty. I owe it to them to give them my very best each day.

What is most important for a teacher to be highly effective?

An effective teacher must be skilled in pedagogy, but I don't believe that is all that is needed. A highly effective teacher must also be willing to engage students on a social level. When I develop personal relationships with the students, they are eager to come to class, they are more comfortable in class, and they are willing to take control of their learning.

Do you have a plan for your retirement? How does CalSTRS fit into that plan?

I shudder to think what life would be like without teaching, but yes, I have thought about retirement. CalSTRS is a major part of my retirement plans. I monitor my contributions and have been to a couple of retirement workshops. I have an additional 403(b) account and some mutual fund accounts. I also try to have very little debt and spend money wisely.

“When my students walk into my room each day, the future walks in with them. They are so resilient and inspiring that very few things can bring me down.”

Making Progress Toward a Funding Solution

By Jack Ehnes, CalSTRS CEO

For the past several years, CalSTRS has been working to demonstrate the urgent need for the Legislature and the Governor to craft a long-term funding solution to protect California's educators and the state's General Fund. Unlike other pension plans in California, CalSTRS lacks the authority to raise contribution rates and must instead rely upon the Legislature and the Governor.

As I mentioned in the previous issue of CalSTRS Connections, last year we submitted a report to the Legislature that provides a range of sustainable funding strategies that could be employed to secure the long-term funding needs of the Defined Benefit Program. Also, our staff made considerable efforts to educate each state legislator on the status of CalSTRS' funding.

All of that hard work has started to pay off. In January of this year, the Governor introduced California's budget plan for the 2014–15 fiscal year. In the budget plan, the Governor commits to begin working with the Legislature, school districts, teachers and CalSTRS to enact a plan as part of the 2015–16 budget that will fully fund the Defined Benefit Program in the next 30 years.

Additionally, in February the Assembly Speaker and the chair of the Assembly Committee on Public Employees, Retirement and Social Security held a news conference to discuss efforts to improve the unfunded liability facing CalSTRS. Their goal is to have CalSTRS 100 percent funded, and efforts to develop a long-term funding plan will begin this year.

To help meet that goal, they called for a series of legislative hearings on CalSTRS' funding. I attended the first of these hearings in February and presented updated information on the funding report we provided the Legislature last year, which serves as a starting point for policymakers as they work to enact a sustainable funding solution.

As I shared with the committee, our preliminary estimates show an increase of 14.2 percent of payroll is needed to fully fund the Defined Benefit Program over 30 years beginning July 1, 2015. CalSTRS' funding is a shared responsibility among the state, school districts, and educators, and the proportion of increased contributions will need to be determined by the Legislature and the Governor.

CalSTRS will continue to work with the Legislature and the Governor as they develop a funding plan. As always, we will keep you updated on the progress of this very important issue, both in this newsletter and on CalSTRS.com.
