Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act

Your right to receive credit and benefits for your qualified uniformed service

Under the federal Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act of 1994, you have a right to receive credit for CalSTRS benefits for the eligible period of your uniformed service if you return to work in an eligible position for the same CalSTRS employer you had immediately before your service or if you die while performing eligible uniformed service.

In addition, if you pay the contributions you would have made had you remained working for your CalSTRS employer, you’ll receive the benefits under the Defined Benefit, Defined Benefit Supplement and Cash Balance Benefit programs you otherwise would have received.

Eligible Uniformed Service

Eligible uniformed service includes:

- U.S. Armed Forces
- Army National Guard and Air National Guard
- Full-time National Guard
- Commissioned corps of the U.S. Public Health Service
- Any other category designated by the president in time of war or emergency

Your service may be voluntary or involuntary and includes:

- Active duty
- Active or inactive duty training
- Funeral honors duty
- The period you’re absent from employment for an examination to determine your fitness for duty
- The period following your service through the last day you’re eligible to report back to work as specified under Section 1002.259 of Title 20 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

To receive credit, your discharge from uniformed service must have been under honorable conditions.

How It Works

Your employer is required to notify CalSTRS of your reemployment within 30 days of your reemployment date. We’ll send you a letter explaining your rights based on information your employer provided and a billing statement. The billing statement does not obligate you to pay the contributions.
Defined Benefit Members

You’ll automatically receive service credit for the purpose of determining your eligibility for CalSTRS benefits under the Defined Benefit Program for your qualified uniformed service. You’re eligible for a monthly retirement benefit when you have five years of service credit.

If you choose to pay the contributions you would have made had you remained employed with your CalSTRS employer, your service credit will also count toward your retirement benefit calculation. In addition, the compensation earnable associated with your contributions will be considered when calculating your final compensation. We’ll also credit your Defined Benefit Supplement account any contributions, interest and additional earnings credits you would have received.

If you choose not to pay the contributions associated with your uniformed service, you’ll only receive credit for the purpose of determining your eligibility for CalSTRS benefits and not an increase in the amount of your benefits.

Cash Balance Benefit Participants

Under the Cash Balance Benefit Program, service credit is not a factor in your eligibility for a retirement benefit. If you choose to pay the contributions you otherwise would have paid had you remained employed with your CalSTRS employer, we’ll credit your account with the employee and employer contributions, interest and additional earnings credits you would have received.

If you choose not to pay the contributions associated with your uniformed service, you won’t receive an increase in your benefit.

Making Contributions

You must make your contribution payments within the designated time period. The period begins with your reemployment date and lasts for three times the length of your uniformed service period, up to five years. Your contributions must be paid in full before your retirement date.

Defined Benefit Members

If you’re a Defined Benefit member, you can pay your contributions by any of the following methods:

- Lump-sum payment
- Rollover from a qualified plan
- Monthly installments through tax-deferred payroll deduction
- Monthly cash installments

If you choose not to make payments within the designated time period, you can still receive service credit and increase your retirement benefit by completing a permissive service credit purchase. However, the cost of your purchase will be calculated differently and typically will cost more. In addition, you won’t be able to make Defined Benefit Supplement account contributions, or receive Defined Benefit Supplement additional earnings or interest credits for your period of uniformed service.

Cash Balance Benefit Participants

If you’re a Cash Balance Benefit participant, you must pay your contributions by payroll deduction within the designated window period. You cannot make contributions outside of the designated window period.

For more information regarding your particular situation, schedule an appointment with a CalSTRS benefits specialist using your myCalSTRS account or by calling 800-228-5453.